

Mission Statement

The mission of the Indianapolis Re-Entry Educational Facility is to continue to maintain public safety in an environment where programming educates, trains, and inspires residents so that each resident will be prepared for his successful re-entry into our communities and sustain a lifestyle consistent with social and family values in order to continue to live as a law-abiding citizen.

Facility Overview

Indianapolis Re-Entry Educational Facility (IREF) is a minimum security level facility, formerly known as Plainfield Re-Entry Educational Facility, and originally located in the town of Plainfield. This Indiana Department of Correction facility was converted into the nation's first correctional facility dedicated to re-entry on January 13, 2006, after serving as the Indiana Boys' School for over 100 years. IREF relocated to the city of Indianapolis on December 16, 2009, at the former Indiana Women's Prison. It continues to maintain public safety while providing residents with the skills required for successful reintegration into the community, with the ultimate goal of reducing recidivism. In an effort to meet these goals, IREF attempts to deinstitutionalize its residents by providing them free movement inside a secured perimeter fence in a culture similar to civilian society.

Facility Overview

The Indianapolis Re-Entry Educational Facility (IREF) is a program primarily focused toward three areas in re-entry preparation -specifically education, job training, and life-skills training. The facility is an open campus environment, with a daily schedule that reflects the “real” world.

Offenders are referred to as “residents” and the entire program operates in a culture of respect and mutual support. Residents are allowed and encouraged to wear civilian clothing (per facility-specific rules and regulations). They are also responsible for their program and success, and are held to the highest standards of conduct. Residents who do not meet IREF standards for behavior, attitude, or program participation will be returned to a higher security level facility

Re-entry Specialists (Case Managers / Counselors) maintain caseloads that provide individualized case-management services to residents.

In an effort to meet these goals, IREF attempts to de-institutionalize its residents and creates a culture and environment similar to civilian society inside the secure perimeter of the facility grounds.
